Outline of the demonstration project

- Development of an online medical platform based on personal health records in Malaysia amid the COVID-19 epidemic

Cooperation with local companies/governments

- Local partners: Sunway Medical Center (a private hospital accredited by Australian Council on Healthcare Standards)

Targeted economic/social issues and solutions

- In Malaysia, although the ban on online medical treatment was lifted due to the COVID-19 outbreak, the development of an online medical care system with adequate functions such as disease management through data collaboration and security system for handling medical information has been slow.
- By developing an online medical platform utilizing smartphones, we aim at enabling remote cooperation between physicians, improve the quality of online medical care, prevent severe conditions, and foster patient peace of mind, thereby improving satisfaction with hospitals.
