New Indonesian patent law no. 13/2016 has come into force on August 26, 2016.

The following are the key changes of the new Indonesian patent law:

1) Extension of object of petty patent protection.

Under the new patent law the petty patent protection is given not only to product (new or existing development), but also for new processes or development of existing processes.

2) Extension of unpatentable invention.

Invention shall not include the following:

Finding (discovery) in the form of:

o new use for existing and/or known products; and/or o new form of existing compound that does not result significant increased efficacy in which the difference of the related chemical structure of the compound is already known.

Rules and methods that only contain a computer program

Rules and methods for performing activities:

o involving mental activity,

o game; and

o business.

Presentation about an information

3) Disclosure of genetic resources and/or traditional knowledge in description.

If an invention relates to and/or derived from genetic resources and/or traditional knowledge, it should be disclosed clearly and correctly the origin of genetic resources and/or traditional knowledge in patent description. This provision is in accordance with Nagoya Protocol which is intended to have Access Benefit Sharing as an effort to protect Genetic Resources and Traditional Knowledge (SDGPT).

4) Due date for paying patent annuities.

Payment due date:

The accumulated annuity fees (from filing to grant plus 1 year) will be due on 6 months from the granting date (the issuance of Notice of Allowance instead of Patent Certificate).

The second and the subsequent payment will be due on 1 month before each anniversary of filing date (not anniversary of granting date).

Late payment:

The Indonesian Patent Office will immediately deems a patent as being cancelled, if annuity fee is not paid by the due date.

Please be advised that for national phase of PCT application the effective filing date as a basis for calculating the patent term and the patent annuity is the filing date of PCT application instead of the filing date of national phase application.

However, for direct filing application the effective filing date as a basis for calculating the patent term and the patent annuity is the actual date the application was filed in Indonesia.

New Indonesian mark law no. 20/2016 has come into force on November 25, 2016.

The following are the key changes of the new Indonesian mark law:

1) It is now possible to obtain sound, hologram and three-dimension mark registrations.

2) There is six-month grace period for late renewal trademark registration with official surcharge.
